DUI's ECODiveWear

What is it? Divewear liners made with 75 percent recycled materials. ECODiveWear can be worn underneath any divewear as insulation for extra warmth and has excellent moisture wicking, thanks to the inclusion of Polartec® Power Dry® materials. It can also be worn on the surface between dives to protect from the sun, or worn for just about any other outdoor activity. It's made dark green with matching accent stitching, a crewneck and comes in various sizes for men and women. Available in pullover top and pants.

Benefits to your diving: Besides keeping you warm while you dive, DUI ECODiveWear does the environment good. If you value diving with the peace of mind knowing that you're limiting your carbon footprint, the ECODiveWear is worth a closer look. For more information or to contact your nearest DUI dealer, call toll-free (800) 325-8439 or visit www.dui-online.com.

Apeks' Flight

What is it? The lightest regulator in the world, according to its manufacturer, which also says the Flight is the most compact regulator it's ever made. Designed primarily for the travel diver, Flight is also rugged enough to withstand water temperatures as cold as 50 degrees Fahrenheit (10 degrees Celsius), thanks to insulation techniques and advanced materials used in its construction. The area where a normal first-stage regulator freezes is protected and insulated, which reduces the freezing effect and helps prevent freeflows. The design of the Flight is composed of a strong forged solid brass skeletal body surrounded with perfect jacket material.

Benefits to your diving: The lightweight regulator is welcome news these days, especially as divers try to lighten their load and comply with ever-changing weight limits for airline luggage. For more information about the Flight or to reach the nearest Apeks dealer, call (760) 597-5000 or check out www.aqualung.com.
